

On Any Given Day In Franklin Township

By Carmine Ricciardi - Third Grade, First Place

On any given day horses and their riders come through my back yard on the Capaloong Creek Trail. The riders always stop and say hello.

On any given day people in Franklin Township always wave hello whether they are walking by or driving by.

On any given day the forest animals use our backyard for their personal playground.

On any given day in the spring and summer pretty flowers grow along the sides of the roads where no one lives. It is as if Mother Nature planted them there herself.

On any given day any of our farmers would be happy to talk to you about their crops and their tractors.

On any given day I would not choose to live any place else but in Franklin Township.

I think that what makes this rural community of Franklin Township such a special place, on any given day, is its kind residents and its beautiful nature.
